

WHAT DOES LOCAL LOVE LOOK LIKE?

This is Ken. When the recession hit he was laid off. He and his family needed the help of United Way funded programs. Now that things have turned around for Ken, he is giving back. His weekly donation goes to help "people like me, real people, often in these situations due to circumstances beyond their control."

This is AJ. "I should have been successful, but I wasn't. When I was nine, I was diagnosed with obsessive compulsive disorder, generalized anxiety, and depression." United Way agencies helped AJ when he left home as a teen. Now, he's reconnected with his family, thinking about school, and helping other young people. United Way Peterborough supports a range of programs including counselling, housing, peer support, and skills development so that people can be successful. And it's thanks to donors like you.
